

Why I would like to visit Japan ?

Japan is for me the place to go, and has been the center of my interests for a few years now. I have discovered the Japanese culture in 2012, with animes and manga to begin. Then I started to have interest in Japanese cuisine, with all its recipes, flavors and ingredients, and really want to visit Japan to taste all this refined cuisine by myself. Japan is also characterized by its unique culture, with various traditions and practices, and beautiful landscapes : the contrast between big cities and isolated countryside, Mount Fuji, onsens, Tokyo's bars, and also the geographic diversity. I started learning Japanese, which is a very interesting language, very different from French for example, which is my native language. It is very captivating to discover kanjis and their combinations, and speaking the local language will be very helpful to visit the country.

Going to Japan by myself would be the occasion to realize my objective, which is to see the country with my own eyes and to enjoy all the loveliness it has to offer. A Working Holiday Visa is the best way to enter and to impregnate in Japanese culture as it is a good compromise to visit the country, because it allows to work if needed and to reduce the cost of the trip if I ever came to run out of money. But, above all, the goal is to do the most woofing and couch-surfing as possible. Going to Japan for an entire year would be a one-year break in my life and during my studies, because I have almost finished them and it will be very difficult to do this once I will graduate.
